Awareness...

Cancer is a difficult subject to talk about, particularly for those who have been diagnosed with the disease—no matter which form it takes. If the cancer in question happens to be one of the “Dirty” Dozen—the major forms of cancer that occur Below the Belt—it can feel impossible. Because of existing social taboos regarding our sexual, reproductive, and excretory organs, Cancer Below the Belt rarely gets the attention required for early detection and successful treatment.

Our mission is to change all of that. To erase the stigma; to lift the taboos; to encourage people to openly discuss these cancers, to help them find treatment options, information, and emotional support.

Join us, and #GetCaughtWithYourPantsDown to bring awareness to Cancer Below the Belt.
